VIRGINIA HOLES FINAL PRACTICE

Eleven Goes Through Light Scrimmage Preparatory to Game With Navy.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., October 21.—The Virginia eleven work-out today was the last before the contest with the Navy. The work was comparatively light, though the men were on the field for nearly two hours.

After listening to a lecture from Coach Nett and after the team lined up for a signal practice lasting half an hour. The scrimmage which followed was for a like period, but not as strenuous as usual, for fear of adding to the list of injured. The varsity made two touchdowns, Christian scoring the first, and Captain Yancy, the second. Todd, the stocky little quarterback on the scrum, won repeated applause for his brilliant dashes through the line. Varner, former captain of the Blacksburg eleven, also put up a star game at tackle, and frequently threw the varsity backs for a loss.

The varsity linemen showed some improvement in charging, and played lower to the line than at any time this season.

During the signal practice Captain Yancy dropped three goals from placement from the thirty-five-yard line in as many attempts.

Elliott, left halfback, who has been in the hospital since the Lehigh game, appeared in uniform and participated in the signal practice, but was not used in scrimmages.

Goach, varsity quarter, had a narrow escape from injury, but did not participate. While attempting to catch a punt he collided head-on with a member of the scrub team and received a vicious blow on the head. Later he gave way to Blakeney.

PRESS NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

Fred Niblo.
Fred Niblo will conduct us on the third of the zig-zag journeys at the Academy Monday night. On this occasion we will travel through Ireland, from Blarney Castle to the Giant's Causeway. Ireland, which has been made famous by song and story, will be shown in all its beauty, and with picture and story Mr. Niblo will make this one of the most pleasing evenings to be spent at the Academy this season.

Fritz Scheff.
Fritz Scheff, the most prominent exponent of light opera roles in the country to-day, will appear here with Charles Dillingham's original company from the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, in the comic opera success, "The Prima Donna." Madame Scheff will arrive in Richmond from Norfolk on her private car, the Plymouth Rock, on a special train, on which the members of her company of 100 people are traveling, at 12:30 noon Wednesday, October 27, and will appear that night at the Academy. A special orchestra is carried by the company. Seat sale Monday.

"Fluffy Ruffles."
Florence Gear gave our theatregoers a corned, and a most interesting and amusing show. Everybody thought that Marie Cahill had made that comedy so completely her own that any other comedienne who might essay it would suffer by comparison. Miss Gear not only played "Marrying Mary" well, but she played along original lines, and that was what was missing in her predecessor's interpretation. Next Tuesday night, October 26th, Miss Gear will be seen in the comedy, "Fluffy Ruffles." Seats sale to-day.—Adv.

Senator Martin and Mann Speak

Address the Voters of the Southwest at Big Stone Gap.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] BIG STONE GAP, VA., October 21.—Judge Mann and Senator Martin addressed the voters of this section in the interest of the Democratic party in the Federal courthouse here to-day, and were well received. Hon. R. T. Irvine presided.

Judge Mann called attention to the progress made in all lines since the Democrats came in power in 1884, and was warm in praise of Swanson's administration. Captain Kent's charge of gross extravagance in the administration of the State's affairs he dismissed, showing that increased expenses were for the improvement of roads, better and more schools, pensions and home for Confederates, normal schools, agricultural schools and farmers' institutes, and asked what that objection the Republican would not approve. He stated that the State's revenue is now over two millions more yearly than under Republican rule, without increased taxation; that over four millions of the State's bonded indebtedness, and all the interest was paid, and that Virginia's 8 per cent bonds are worth 92.

He advocated good roads built by convict labor and State-owned quarries, the material to be furnished the counties free; more liberal treatment of Confederate soldiers, for whom the late Legislature appropriated $497,000, while but $600 was appropriated during Republican control of the State. He reaffirmed his position on the liquor question, saying that any law ever enacted in this State, should be sufficient. He closed his speech by urging all Democrats to begin now the Ninth District's redemption from Republicanism.

Frank P. Brent, the Republican nominee for Superintendent of Public Instruction, who spoke here to-night was in the audience during Judge Mann's speech.

Children's Lives Worth More Than Commercial Success

WASHINGTON, October 21.—Declaring that dearly as he loved the South he was not willing to have her purchase commercial success at the sacrifice of her little children, F. C. Roberts, chairman of a labor committee of the Central Labor Union of this city, to-day at the convention of the United Textile Workers of America, stirred up much indignation against Dr. C. A. Stiles, of the United States Public Marine Hospital Service, for defending the employment of children in the Southern cotton mills. Dr. Stiles' offending remarks were reported as being made at the meeting of the Southern Textile Workers at Raleigh.

Mr. Roberts declared his surprise that a public officer, paid from the public revenue, should appear before a convention of laborers and undertake to defend child labor in the Southern States. He advocated action by the convention in opposition to any attempt to further extend and perpetuate the system of child labor in Southern cotton mills. Such employment, he said, merely tended to displace adults.

"I love the Southland," said Mr. Roberts, "and I would do almost anything in my power to have the cotton of the South manufactured in Southern States. But there are prices I would not pay for such a commercial victory. I would not give our little children as the price of success. We know that the houses of the poor are insanitary. The effort of organized labor is to make them more sanitary. Here, in the District of Columbia, it is a daily occurrence to hear white and black men and women asking the judges of the Police Court to send them to the workhouse because they would be better off there than in their own homes. The workhouse is more sanitary, and they are better fed than in their own homes. Our effort has been, and will be, to improve the homes."

Thomas Tracy, secretary of the Union Label Department of the American Federation of Labor, called attention to an article appearing in an August magazine, which, he said, would place Dr. Stiles in the position of a witness against himself in the matter of employment of children in Southern cotton mills. In that article, he said, Dr. Stiles had deprecated the employment of children, and had stated that there were 200,000 children in the Southern cotton mills, and that their lives were slowly being sapped by the hookworm disease.

The employment of child labor in Southern States was again the subject of discussion, in which John L. Roberts, of this city, warned delegates from the New England States that if they looked with indifference upon the policy of working children in Southern cotton mills they would soon face a movement for a repeal of child labor laws in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, and the New England industry would find it impossible to compete against such cheap labor.

"I find," said Mr. Roberts, "that men who advocate putting children in the cotton mills of the South do not put in the cotton mills of the North. They would not take the same interest in prohibiting child labor that they took in the liquor traffic."

Mr. Roberts told of his experience in Atlanta, Ga., during a campaign against the liquor traffic. "Ministers of the gospel and women got down on their knees," he said, "and prayed to save big strong men from the demon rum and against their own wives, but these same ministers and women were indifferent when we attempted to get the State to prevent the employment of children under ten years of age."

After the speaker had left the Assembly Hall he referred to the ministers and children brought Edwin Johnson, of New Bedford, Conn., to the meeting. He said that he had been in the ministry for many years, and that he had seen the same interest in prohibiting child labor that they took in the liquor traffic. He said that he had seen the same interest in prohibiting child labor that they took in the liquor traffic.

Postmistress Is Charged With Attempted Bribery

ASHEVILLE, N. C., October 21.—The recent removal of Mrs. Julia Reed from the Blount post-office has caused much excitement here, and counter-charges with Congressman Grant, of this district, figuring prominently.

Grant, in a signed statement given to the Citizen to-night, says he filed the charges which led to the removal, and declares in substance that Mrs. Reed tried to bribe him to secure the office for herself.

A few days after the election," says the Congressman, "she came to me at my home and tried to exact from me a promise of support, which she failed to get. A few days later she came to me and tried to bribe me in the presence of my wife and daughter, saying that if I would let her keep the office, she would give me $10,000. I refused her offer, and she has since been endeavoring to get me out of the office."

PRESIDENT TAFT VISITOR IN TAFT

Guest of Town Which Gave Him Unanimous Vote in Last Election.

HE IS DEFEATED AT GOLF

Plays 18 Holes With Texas Champion and Shows Up Badly.

GREGORY, TEX., October 21.—President Taft had his education as a ranchman further enhanced to-day by another day of sightseeing on the practical side of things.

Starting from La Quinta at 3 o'clock, the President motored over to Taft, eleven miles away, to visit the town which gave him its unanimous vote in the election of last fall. In the schoolhouse there he made a little speech of thanks and congratulation to his brother's farm hands. On the highway to Taft the President stopped at the cotton gin to watch its operation. There he saw for the first time a steam play at work in the fields. Next he visited the creamery, where he ate a dish of ice cream, and just before going to the schoolhouse, he had a look at the abattoir, which was not in use, however.

During the morning the President had played eighteen holes of golf with Robert Connerly, of Austin, the reputed champion of Texas. The President invited Mr. Connerly down "to get a beating," but the young Texan led his distinguished opponent from the very first hole.

To-morrow the President will break into his four days' vacation long enough to go over to Corpus Christi on the revenue cutter Winnow to speak before the International Waterways Association. He will return to La Quinta early enough in the afternoon to have a final game of golf before leaving at 8:10 o'clock for Houston and Dallas.

At the schoolhouse at Taft this afternoon the President was introduced by his brother, Charles P. Taft.

"I have heard of this ranch for a good many years," said the President. "I heard of it from David Stinson, Mrs. Taft's father, who offered me the job of being a ranchman. I have heard of it from David Stinson, Mrs. Taft's father, who offered me the job of being a ranchman. I have heard of it from David Stinson, Mrs. Taft's father, who offered me the job of being a ranchman."
